Birchmeadow Film Forum is a movie discussion group.
A film club that's a bit like a book club.

We sit down together to watch a film (perhaps while enjoying a pint from the Birchmeadow's bar), then chat about it afterwards (perhaps while enjoying another pint).

Members agree beforehand on films to be shown, but we hope they'll always be controversial, challenging or in some way thought-provoking. We're not wanting just "good stories", we want interesting cinema. Discussions may well include comments on camera-work, screenplay, acting, use of music or sound, whether the film was innovative or formulaic and more.

If you're a film-lover, come along and enjoy a sociable drink and a chat about a film that should really get you talking.
